RE: Coronavirus/COVID-19 Update #3

To all Bingham & Taylor Customers,

We continue to follow the developments surrounding COVID-19 (the “Coronavirus”). As a supplier to critical utility and infrastructure projects, B&T is exempt from the work restrictions put in place for other Virginia-based businesses and manufacturers. It is our intention to continue operations without interruption as long as it remains safe for our employees and customers. At the same time, we are aware that this situation is evolving rapidly and there are many remaining risks that have yet to be identified.

With this in mind, we have established contingency plans for all of our production departments, while also educating our staff and implementing cleanliness and social distancing standards as outlined by the CDC. This is an ongoing effort which we review and update daily to incorporate the latest developments and potential risks. We have also been in contact with our suppliers to make sure that we have the necessary equipment and raw materials on hand to support our operations. In cases where supplies were limited, we have secured secondary sources to ensure that our work can continue while protecting our employees and customers.

B&T is still operating at full capacity and shipping according to our customer’s promise dates. Please contact your sales representative for additional information if you have specific questions about your current order status.

B&T is committed supporting our employees and customers during this difficult time. We will continue to provide updates as information becomes available.

Best Regards,

Steve Petrides
